

THE WATERPROOF TRENCH

CHOOSE IT FOR THE CUT. TRUST IT WITH THE WEATHER.

Most trenches only survive a ten-minute drizzle, and most real raincoats look like you're about to summit Mont Blanc. So we made the coat in between.

THE PROBLEM

You have somewhere to be. You know what you want to wear. Then it starts raining.

After living in Brussels, Paris and New York, designer Léa Stein had asked the same question often enough: why couldn't a beautifully made coat take care of the weather, too?

THE ANSWER

Is a trench coat waterproof? Usually not. Ours is.

A classic cotton trench sheds a shower; ĀPA is built for a full day of rain. French-inspired tailoring on the outside, Schoeller fabric rated 20,000 mm underneath, with taped seams, a hood on every coat and a membrane that breathes when you move and seals when it pours.

01

Fashion, meet weather.

Léa founded ĀPA in 2016. A Franco-Belgian designer with a background in high fashion, she brought clean silhouettes and careful construction together with Schoeller fabric developed for extreme sports. Your trench, raincoat and travel layer could be the same coat. Zero crunchy hiking-shell noise.

02

From an idea to a coat.

Two years of development, a Kickstarter campaign backed by 363 people and many considered details later, the first collection arrived in 2019. Every seam is taped, the membrane breathes when you move and seals when it pours, and the coat goes in the washing machine on a gentle cycle.

03

Made for the way you move.

ĀPA takes its name from the Sanskrit word for water. Every coat is made in Europe, and the fabric left over from cutting goes to Berlin studio Dzaino and comes back as the upcycled travel pouch. Tailored for the city, comfortable on the move, ready for changing weather.
